JOURNAL STEAM BOOK AND JOB OFFICE.

“E'er, 'mid the shocks and the struggles of life,
Brothers, stand firm in the van !
Nobly we'll conquer or die in the strife—
They shall be cravens who can !
Steady we'll gather and form in our might,
Shoulder to shoulder we'll march through the fight,
Show to the world how we strike for the right,
Faithful to God and to man.”

—Song for '61, by J. K. Stone.

TO THE CLASS OF 1861.

DEAR CLASSMATES:

While a very large proportion of the faults which disfigured my last issued circular, might have also been detected by a careful critic in its predecessor; one, and the greatest, belonged to it alone. It made a promise which was not fulfilled; and that, in spite of its exhortations to truthfulness.

I hoped to reach home in season to prepare this Report before Commencement. Disappointed in this, I sought to put the work into the hands of others nearer the centre of '61's planetary system. Those hands closed, not on it, but against it; and so Scrap-Book, and "Compendium," and letters, etc., have traveled a thousand miles to bring mingled pleasure and pain, fatigue and recreation to one already overtired.

If the Report seems, in everything but accuracy, quite suggestive of "Bro." Sibley's Triennials, consider that it has been prepared, not at the "Hub," abounding in information, but low down in the Mississippi Valley, where Harvard men do not congregate; and by one not luxuriating in elegant leisure, but engrossed by perplexing cares. I send it out, not because I think it is what a Class Report ought to be, but because, in my present situation, I have a peculiar sympathy for those classmates, who are far away from Alma Mater; and because I believe that they will be so much pleased with even a meagre collection of facts and figures, as to be willing to supply for themselves from fancy's stores, the needed elaboration.

It will be noticed that corrections of, and additions to, the first Report, have been incorporated into the body of this, for convenience of reference.

The response made this year by the Class to the appeal for information, is quite gratifying; and points encouragingly to a day when this matter will receive proper attention from all.

Faithfully,

YOUR SECRETARY.

Was with his Regt. at City Point, Va., from June 15, '64; after which date they took part in some of the earliest movements against Petersburg; losing two field-officers—(wounded) at Bayler's farm. June 30, they were sent to Point Lookout, Md., where they remained during the Autumn and Winter, guarding prisoners; Bowditch being detailed on General Court Martial two months of this time. In Sept. and Oct. they were supplied with horses, and made ready for service in the field. Being ordered to the front in the latter part of March '65, they reached the north bank of the James river, just in season to enter Richmond with General Weitzel's command, April 3. They were stationed near Petersburg for some months after this; and on June 3, Bowditch resigned; came immediately home; and in the Autumn re-entered the Lawrence Scientific School, and also studied Anatomy under Prof. Jeffries Wyman. In the winter ('65-'66) he attended lectures in the Harvard Medical School; and at the close of the term resumed his studies with Prof. Wyman. "A. M." H. U., July 18, '66. Address West Roxbury, Mass.

* JEREMIAH WESLEY BOYDEN. Born Oct. 12, '38. Was captured May 6, '64; while A. A. Surg., on U. S. S. "Wave." Was liberated after six weeks imprisonment at Camp Groce, Texas; and, on reporting to Admiral Farragut, was granted a furlough, and spent a month at home. "A. M." H. U. July 20, '64.

Was examined by the Medical Board at Philadelphia, and promoted to Asst. Surg. U. S. N., Aug. 20, '64. Assigned to the Naval Hospital at Norfolk, Va., he remained there about nine months; and was then ordered to the U. S. S. "Muscoota," of the East Gulf Blockading Squadron; which vessel was the scene of his labors till the date of his death, which occurred Aug. 17, '66, after a sickness of only three days. His body was buried at sea, off the coast of Texas; but funeral services were held in Chelsea, Mass., Sept. 16th.

And so we are not permitted to issue this Report without recording the death of a classmate. Again are we who remain, warned to work while the day lasts.

We knew Boyden in College, as a man whose course was straight forward. Neither social allurements, nor the hope of literary honors, availed to turn him aside from that fidelity to his God, and to his fellow men, which, in his sight, ranked high above pleasure or fame.

The vows with which, at the early age of nine years, he bound himself to his Maker, seemed, while we saw him daily, to be always consciously upon him. No one of us ever heard an impure expression from his lips; no one of us ever received an unkindness at his hands; but some of us can recall repeated earnest personal appeals from him, to enter upon a higher life; and some remember rebukes, gentle, but firm,—the faithful wounds of a true friend.

And it was the same Boyden who entered his country's service;—not merely a patriot, but also a Christian. His ministrations to the body, were supplemented by ministrations to the soul. That faithfulness in the performance of his duties as Surgeon, and that application to his studies, which prompted an aged Naval officer to write:—“Dr. Boyden gave promise of great distinction” in the practice of his profession in the Navy; was accompanied by a devotion to the spiritual good of those who came under his care, which was to him a present distinction.

The last Sabbath he spent on shore was marked by the admission to the church of two men for whose religious welfare he had labored and prayed; and by his participation with them in the Lord's Supper.

A few days after this the yellow fever broke out on board his vessel. It spread rapidly, until the cases numbered more than fifty. Soon Boyden was himself attacked; and Dr. Arthur, summoned from Brazos Santiago, off which place the “Muscoota” was then lying, assured him that his life could not be saved. Even then our classmate's moral steadiness continued the same. Calling to his side the Captain's Clerk, he asked him to write down what he had to say. He gave directions relating to the disposition of his property; and then repeatedly, and in various ways, expressed his complete submission to the Father's will. There was more than a forced acquiescence; there was a joyful acceptance of the decree; so that he could say:—"This looks like suffering to you, but to me it is happiness indeed; the prospect of being with Christ, who has redeemed me by his precious blood. — Of all the days of my existence this to me is the most welcome."

Thus to him, steadfast to the end, working while the day lasted, the approach of "night" suggested not gloom and darkness, but the dawning of a more glorious day.

We can honor his memory more by imitating his virtues, than by lamenting his early entrance upon immortality.

CHARLES ALONZO COOPER. "A. M." II. U. July 20, '64.

Cooper's record is one of almost uninterrupted suffering for the last three years. In the Spring of '63, he started for Minnesota, in charge of a sick friend. The fatigue of journeying proved too great for the invalid, however; and, after reaching Harrisburg, Penn., they found it necessary to return. Our classmate's friend became so weak as to be unable to walk, even while supported; so that, when they reached the Jersey City Depot, no help being at hand, Cooper took him in his arms, and carried him through the cars, and some distance in the building. While doing this he injured his spine; of which he was notified at the instant by an acute pain, which troubled him seriously during the Summer, Fall, and Winter; yet it did not prevent his attending the lectures in the Harv. Med. School. On the advent of warm weather his sufferings so increased, that his friends despaired of his life. The bracing air of the White Mountains benefited him, however; giving him strength to endure through the Winter, which he spent at home. His disease was aggravated again, by the heat of the Summer of '65, so that he "suffered intensely, not being free from pain for a single moment, for a number of months." Once more he resorted to the Mountains, and was helped; and at the date, June 21, '66, he thought he was slowly regaining his health. Address, Cambridgeport, Mass.

SCOLLAY PARKER. July 8. '64, was detached from the Miss. Squadron ; and was ordered, Aug. 19, to U. S. S. "Glau-cus," at Phila. Cruised along the coast, among the West Indies, and as far as Aspinwall, on convoy duty. In Dec., while on the way to the Naval Rendezvous at Beaufort, N. C., preparatory to the attack on Fort Fisher, the vessel grounded on Great Inagua Bahamas, causing the loss of propeller, rudder, and guns.

During the Christmas holidays they were towed with great difficulty, on account of rough weather, around the Southern coast of Cuba, and into Gonaives, Hayti, by the U. S. S. "Gala-teia." Parker was not favorably impressed with the Haytien populace; but found the aristocracy, who are for the most part mulattoes, generally wealthy and intelligent. From Gonaives they were towed to Key West by U. S. S. "Magnolia," toward the close of Jan. '65; when Parker was transferred to the U.
S. S. "Isonomia;" which cruised for some months along the West coast of Florida. In Apl., they saved from ship-wreck an English schooner, whose Captain had lost his reckoning. In June they were ordered to Key West, en route for New York, where the vessel went out of commission, June 29. From that date to Feb. 5, '66, Parker was awaiting orders; during the Winter attending Medical Lectures in N. Y. Feb. 5, he was ordered to Pensacola, Fla., for duty on U. S. S. "Yucca;" and has since been cruising in her up and down the Gulf coast. In
